

Rome, April 21. 1898.

My dear Prof. Saccardo:

I am spending a few weeks in Italy and hope before I leave for Paris that I may have the pleasure of seeing you. As I have already been unfortunate in my attempts to see my correspondents here, I write to ask whether you are likely to be in Padua during the first two weeks in May. I cannot at this moment determine just when I shall reach Padua after going from here to Florence, but I think it will be about May 10th. If you are likely to be away about this time I will endeavor to modify my plans accordingly. If you will kindly write me to Whitby & Co. Florence, I will send a line before I go thence to Padua.

Very Sincerely Yours
Roland Thaxter
